

LOOKS IN WRONG BERTH FOR WIFE

Indianapolis Man Seeking
Mate Gets Lovely
Eye Instead.

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—When a big four train from Indianapolis chugged to a stop at the Englewood station early today, a man, descended whose left eye was a blue black, swollen marvel. The story was brief. In his frantic search for his supposed runaway wife he had looked into the wrong berth.

The injured man was Fred A. Stewart, a wealthy saloon keeper of Indianapolis. He was taken from the train by Detective Sergts. Magner and Bailey, and at the detective bureau was regarded as unbalanced by the loss of his wife.

Stewart's wife has been missing for three days. Last night information came to him, he told the police, that she was to flee from Indianapolis on the Big Four train in company with another man. In pursuit he boarded the train, and waited until it was well under way.

Then he began his berth-to-berth search. In the gloom of lower four he peered upon a sleeping couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pettibone of Louisville, Ky.

"I've got you now," he shouted. The man arose and demanded to know what he was talking about.

"Give me back my wife," Stewart said. Pettibone, who is an official of the Mutual Audit Co. of Louisville, responded with the blow to the saloonman's left eye.

The train was thrown into an uproar by the struggle that followed. Sleepers rushed into the aisle to be overborne by the fight, and it was some time before Stewart was subdued by the train crew and taken to the baggage car. He insisted upon renewing his search through the sleeping car until the inspiration came to him that his missing wife was in one of the trunks. There was another fight to prevent him opening them.

A telegram to Chicago brought the detectives to the Englewood station. They had hard work to prevent Stewart from pouncing upon a farmer whom he accused of stealing his wife. He was locked up, although no charge was entered against him.

Traffic Patrolman Frank Candee, of Syracuse, N. Y., who went about recently sticking a piece of his down rabbit holes and shouting loudly into the other end, got eighteen rabbits.

Leading Figures in Miskinoff Love Tangle

MISS YVONNE GOURAUD.

PRINCE MISKINOFF.

PRINCESS ANISE MISKINOFF.

Yvonne is the foster daughter of Princess Miskinoff and the cause of many quarrels with the latter and her husband. At the suggestion of the princess herself, the prince and Yvonne underwent a three-months' love test.

Prince Miskinoff, who is considerably younger than his wife, admits he was fascinated by the latter's foster-daughter, Yvonne. The girl, he said, was simply irresistible at times. He claims she did all she could to attract his notice.

Princess Miskinoff had had several stormy marital experiences before her marriage to the Prince, but none that compared to her troubles with him. Note the tattooing on her arm.

Because of the publicity given to Prince Miskinoff's separation suit in the supreme court, it is probable that a quiet settlement will be reached outside of court.

ONE DEAD AFTER BRAWL

Four Men Engage in Fight on Creek Bank.

KOKOMO, Ind., Feb. 25.—One man is dead and three are under arrest in Howard county jail here as the result of a brawl in which the four engaged Thursday night on the banks of Wild Cat creek within one block of the court house. The dead man is Martin McAvoy of Bedford, Ind. The others are John O'Brien, Fred and Clarence Little.

The men are covered with wounds, but Thursday night were too much under the influence of bootlegger's liquor to give a coherent account of the affair.

Employees of the Kokomo Gas Co. informed the police that four men were drinking and fighting on the creek bank and an investigation was made.

Whether McAvoy's death was the result of foul play or from alcoholic poisoning has not been determined.

The placid, a ferocious fish, is widely cultivated in Spain by people who prepare them for the "prize ring" or pond, where they battle.

DOG SAVES LIVES OF FAMILY; DIES IN FIRE

Blackened Rafters of a Suburban Home Mark Funeral Pyre of Hero.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Blackened rafters of a suburban home in Oak Park today marked the funeral pyre of a hero. "Sport" was his name and in appearance he was no different from many another dog who answered to that appellation.

But he was a hero. When fire attacked the home of William L. Harris, the family—father, mother and three small children—was soundly sleeping. Sport's incessant barking awakened Mr. Harris and he found his wife and children overcome with smoke. He carried them to safety, but Sport was forgotten. When the flames were extinguished, his charred body was found in the ruins.

A Talk to Mothers About Croup and Cold Troubles

The New Treatment With Fresh Air and Antiseptic Vapors That Does Away With Injurious Internal Medicines, Flannel Jackets, etc., etc.

All mothers are "home doctors" when it comes to treating the croup and cold troubles that all children are heir to. They know that growing children need outdoor exercise, and that, with outdoor exercise, some colds are bound to come. They know, too, that internal medicines injure delicate little stomachs, but that these colds must have some kind of treatment.

The answer to this problem is the "external" treatment, Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve. For the many forms of cold troubles, from head colds, asthma and catarrh, down to sore throat, bronchitis and deep chest colds, Vap-O-Rub will be found better than internal medicines. Just apply "Vap-O-Rub" well over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the cov-
